NOVEMBER 2018

The following is a poem by Roy F. Wilson (former member of our church, he passed in 1993, he had written a book of poems and doctrine passages, I found the book in the office and wanted to share with you.

SECOND MILE

It's that little extra something
That makes a day complete;
It's the little extra smile that
Makes the face look sweet.

It's the little extra handshake
And then a glad hello
That makes folks glad to come,
And then regret to go.

It's a little extra effort
Which gets a job well done,
Through a little extra praying
A lost soul may be won.

Man is hopeless without Christ; and helpless without prayer.

Mathematical Christians: add good; subtract evil; multiply talents; divide riches.
